Gritty Jayvie nails it after shoot-out

By Anthony S. Ledesma

Fighting with a toughed-out posture, Gritty Jayvie, a 19-year-old, gave the Philippines a 1-0 lead in the final after shooting to win the Philippine Football Federation's women's national cup.

The 19-year-old Jayvie, who is a member of the Philippine Football Federation's women's national team, scored the winning goal in the 11th minute of the final match.

The match was held at the Rizal Memorial Sports Complex in Manila. The Philippines defeated the United States 1-0. Jayvie's goal was the only goal of the match. The Philippines' victory marks a historic moment for the women's national team.

The Philippines' victory in the final match of the Philippine Football Federation's women's national cup is a significant achievement for the women's national team. It is the first time the Philippines has won the cup since its inception in 1991.

The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable Perceived Organizational Support. The independent variables are Organizational Commitment and Organizational Identification. The table includes the regression coefficients, standard errors, t-statistics, and p-values for each variable.

Variable	Regression Coefficient	Standard Error	t-Statistic	p-Value
Organizational Commitment	0.35	0.05	7.00	<0.001
Organizational Identification	0.25	0.05	5.00	<0.001
Constant	1.50	0.10	15.00	<0.001
Adjusted R-squared	0.85

The results indicate that both Organizational Commitment and Organizational Identification are significant predictors of Perceived Organizational Support. The adjusted R-squared value of 0.85 suggests that the model explains 85% of the variance in the dependent variable.

Meningococccemia: An ancient disease

By [Name] [Date]

Bacteria that cause meningococccemia, a rare and often fatal disease, have been found in the bodies of ancient Egyptians, according to a study published in the journal PLoS ONE.

The study, led by researchers from the University of California, San Diego, and the University of Texas at Austin, found that the bacteria, which cause meningitis and sepsis, were present in the bodies of two ancient Egyptians who died around 2,600 years ago.

The researchers used a technique called ancient DNA sequencing to analyze the remains of the two individuals, who were found in a tomb in the desert near Luxor, Egypt. The results showed that the bacteria were present in the bodies of both individuals, suggesting that the disease was present in ancient Egypt.

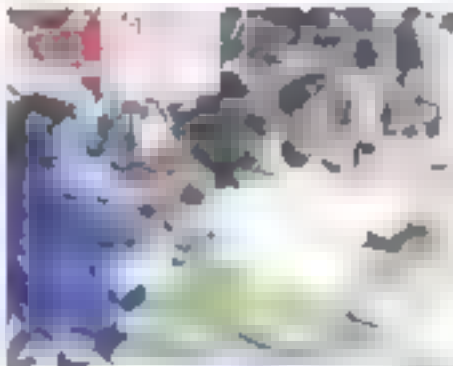

The findings are significant because they show that meningococccemia has been around for thousands of years, and that it is still a major cause of death and disability today. The researchers hope that their findings will help to develop new treatments for the disease.

Up to 4 days

The researchers found that the bacteria were present in the bodies of the two individuals for up to 4 days before they died. This suggests that the disease can be transmitted from one person to another within a short period of time.

Highly contagious

The researchers also found that the bacteria were highly contagious, and that they could be transmitted from one person to another through direct contact. This suggests that the disease is still a major public health concern today.
